

LIQUID CRYSTAL DISPLAY PANEL

Abstract

A liquid crystal display includes a silicon substrate, a micro color filter, a bottom alignment layer, a liquid crystal layer, a top alignment layer, a transparent conductive layer, and a glass substrate stacked in sequence. While a light gets into the liquid crystal display panel, only a specific spectrum of the incident light is transmitted through the micro color filter and is then reflected upward by the silicon substrate to display images.